A pirate's life for us: Members of the Pan Nation Steel Orchestra will perform at the Lord Mayor's Show

Grant helps group to go with a bang

A COMMUNITY group has received a grant of £15,000 to allow it to take part in this year's Lord Mayor's Show.

Haringey-based Pan Nation Steel Orchestra will enter a Pirates Of The Caribbean-themed float.

The team is constructing an exciting deserted island, which will be decorated with parrots, coconuts, canons and treasure.

The steel pan and percussion aficionados will be dressed in fetching eye-patches and pirate uniforms, playing a wide-ranging repertoire of hits.

Chris Storey, band manager and arranger, said: "It's great to be a part of such a big event. I hope that by taking part in the Lord Mayor's Show that we'll encourage more people to try the steel pan, and get involved in their local community in a positive way."

"The guys are so excited about the preparations – we can't wait for show day now! They are going to get a lot of attention and they deserve every second of it."

The show takes place on Saturday, November 12, with a procession from Mansion House to the Royal Courts of Justice via St Paul's Cathedral.

£17M DEAL CAN'T TIE DOWN SPURS

TOTTENHAM Hotspur's chairman has refused to commit the club's long-term future to north London, despite calls to do so from the Mayor of London.

Daniel Levy said it would be "irresponsible" to make such a proclamation until the "appropriate agreements and support" are firmly in place.

His comments come after the Mayor of London,

Boris Johnson, called on the club to press ahead with its Northumberland Development Project and help kick-start major regeneration in the area.

Mr Johnson and Haringey Council leader Clair Kober, have both urged the club to move on urgently with its proposal to build a new stadium now it has been given planning approval.

Representatives from the council and the Greater London Authority met Mr Levy and senior Tottenham executives last week to lay a £17million joint offer on the table that would see a raft of public realm and transport improvements made as part of a long-term regeneration package.

The mayor's package includes £5m for vital infrastructure and public realm works and £3.5m worth of funding to secure key improvements to transport links to and from the area at Tottenham Hale and White Hart Lane stations.

The offer means that the club would be relieved of all planning gain requirements – contingency agreements to invest in public services which are often associated with large scale developments.

This means the Northumberland Park project now relies solely on a commercial decision by Tottenham Hotspur on whether to go ahead with their proposals.

Mr Johnson said: "Tottenham Hotspur have long been an integral part of the community and by staying true to its roots the club now has the power to revolutionise an area of the capital that has been neglected for far too long.

"The club know there is no more money available from the public purse and I sincerely hope that they accept the offer we have made. It is not just in the best interests of Tottenham Hotspur and the fans of this great London club, but of the wider north London community."

Ms Kober added that it was "critically important" that Spurs commit to Tottenham.

However, Mr Levy's comments implied there was still some way to go before any sort of formal agreement.

"We are the major employer and economic driver in the area and are now the only major private sector business here that is looking to invest and play its part in the regeneration of an area which has suffered from decades of under-investment," he said.

"The proposed stadium scheme and wider area development has the potential to lever hundreds of millions of pounds worth of much-needed regenerative development to Tottenham. But we cannot be expected to do this single-handedly."

"We have seen land values fall again post the recent riots and this is a further concern for the club as it considers the nature of the investment. The overall scheme requires a complex package of financing of which the correct level and nature of public support is critical."

Police chief's praise for dedicated service

Thin blue line: Police officers and volunteers, including PCSO Lisa Yianni, above, were recognised for their dedication to the force

POLICE officers, volunteers and members of the public have received commendations for their bravery, actions and spirit in the community.

A ceremony took place at the end of September at Tottenham Hotspur Football Club where Haringey's borough commander, Detective Chief Superintendent Sandra Looby, handed out the awards.

Among those to receive the awards were a young man who helped a road crash victim from their car after it smashed into a house, an officer who suffered a fractured cheekbone while arresting two burglary suspects and a Detective Constable whose police work helped to dismantle an organised criminal network, among many others.

Police Community Support Officer Lisa Yianni, of Harringay Safer Neighbourhood team, was commended for her ongoing diligence, initiative, motivation and investigative abilities, particularly through implementing a burglary reduction scheme and building community ties.

She was also recognised for speedily identifying a number of suspects wanted in relation to a pickpocket offence in which more than £4,000 was taken on Christmas Eve 2010, after a man in his sixties was distracted while he was withdrawing cash.

PC Ken Egbuniwe, PC Tim Allpress, paramedic Peter Fisher, ambulance technician Tim Saunders and Mandalina Stepniewska, along with representatives from Haringey Victim Support Service, Through Unity and Word4Weapons, were commended for their professionalism, dedication and commitment in delivering the Haringey Knife Awareness Programme.

Mrs Looby said: "This is one of the proudest moments as a borough commander. It's about recognising a commitment to public service: tenacious investigators who go the extra mile to bring offenders to justice and the incredible role played by backroom staff as the invisible blue line, including a lady that is pregnant recently working through the night because of her commitment to the borough - all helping us to deliver a professional police service to Haringey.

"It's about giving credit to individuals for their bravery and community spirit. I believe their actions reflect the true spirit of Haringey and our shared desire to make the borough a safer place."

Not all double glazing companies are the same,

Some window companies are overly aggressive and employ a hard-sell approach with customers who enquire about windows, doors and conservatories. This often means that customers can be left with overpriced products which are not suited to their needs. Here at Presswarm we believe in good manners. We simply advise customers on the various options that are available and by working together we can arrive at the ideal solution. Inquest fails to shed further light on death of skier in the Alps

MYSTERY still surrounds the death of a man from Haringey whose body was found underneath five metres of snow in the Alps.

Nigel Jackson, 43, who was originally from Liverpool, died while skiing on Christmas Day 2009. It was understood his body was found buried under snow in a ravine on Mont Blanc.

Sitting at North London Coroners' Court last Friday, Caroline Sumeray gave the cause of death as "possible suffocation with or without hypothermia". She recorded a narrative verdict in the case.

The family's lawyers, Irwin Mitchell, said they had hoped the inquest would reveal more about the events leading up to Mr Jackson's death and the apparent accident.

His father, Peter, 70, said: "Nigel was very close to us and it is heartbreaking that we are unlikely to find out what he went through in his last hours.

"It is devastating to have lost my son under these circumstances, but we hoped the inquest would at least help us to understand what went wrong."

Mr Jackson Snr said he was determined to warn other skiers of the potential dangers on the slopes.

"I won't let what happened to Nigel go and I will fight to warn others of possible dangers," he said. "Even if it saves one more life, it will have been worth it."

Halal butcher stabbed to death in broad daylight

POLICE are appealing for witnesses after a butcher was stabbed to death while at work on Thursday afternoon.

Officers were called to Halal Food Direct in The Broadway, Wood Green, just after 3pm to reports of a stabbing after an argument between two men.

Paramedics were called to treat a member of staff, believed to be in his early twenties. He was pronounced dead at the scene. A postmortem is expected to take place today.

No arrests have been made.

Detective Chief Inspector Steven Lawrence, from the homicide and serious crime command, is leading the investigation into the stabbing. He said: "It appears there was dispute in the shop which resulted in the victim being stabbed. A man then made off on foot.

"This incident occurred in a busy area in the middle of the afternoon and we need to hear from any witnesses who have not yet come forward. Did you see anything that may be of use? Did you see in which direction the suspect ran off?"

"It is essential that anyone with information contacts the police as soon as possible."

Anyone with information can call the incident room on 020 7321 9290 or Crimestoppers, anonymously, on 0800 555 111.

Dance event set to battle cancer

By Daniel O'Brien

NEXT month 5,000 Zumba fans will gather at Alexandra Palace to dance their way into the record books to raise money for a cancer charity.

The event, which will be held on Sunday, October 16 and include a performance by hip-hop artist Wyclef Jean, will be run in partnership with Party In Pink and Cure Cancer University College London Hospital.

Cure Cancer was founded by Sandra Hamilton, alongside her niece Lynsey, 18, from Mill Hill. Sandra, who was diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma in 2007, launched the charity with the aim that every penny donated would go to charity. "All charities are great," she said, "but their administration costs are too high. I wanted to start a charity where all the costs are done for free."

She does this by recruiting businesses, such as Natwest, to sponsor the charity's events or provide services free of charge.

This means that all donations made go directly into funding research into non-Hodgkin's lymphoma at University College Hospital, and other charities chosen by sponsors.

Apart from raising money, Sandra also wants to raise awareness of terminal cancers such as non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.

"In my type of cancer, the survival rate is only 35 per cent. And what is worse is that it's now hitting the 20-year-olds. The treatment that you have is so painful, and it's hard to see young people go through it."

It makes it all the more heartening therefore,

Determined: Sandra Hamilton wanted every penny of donations to go to charity that many supporters of Cure Cancer are in that age range, including her niece Lynsey.

"I'm amazed that most of the members of the community are around Lynsey's age. The average age is 25."

Despite her condition Sandra is committed to her role with Cure Cancer, which she describes as a "full-time job", and is focused on raising as much money as possible. "I want to live, I want to survive and I want to help others," she said.

Tickets for the event cost £30. Visit www.curecancer-ucth.org for more details or to buy tickets.

Spurs legends take on RAF cadets to support veterans and their families

A SPURS LEGENDS team defeated RAF Northolt 3-0 in an exciting game held at Ware Football Club Ground in aid of SSAFA Forces Help on Sunday.

Steve Slade and Clive Wilson were both on the Spurs side against a younger squad of volunteers from RAF Northolt, who put on a spirited fight despite numbers being depleted due to Battle of Britain festivities.

Flight Lieutenant Meza, who coached the RAF squad, hoped that it would become a regular fixture for the team.

SSAFA Forces Help received money from the gate and from a raffle, for which which volunteers from Herts & Ware 936 Squadron RAF enthusiastically promoted tickets.

The raffle prize was won by Eddie Clyde of Broxbourne – two tickets, worth more than £1,000, to the Godolphin Hospitality Suite at White Hart Lane, donated by the company.

Michael Kay, chairman of the north-west branch of SSAFA Forces Help Greater London, presented the trophy to Spurs captain Garry Brooke.

He said: “We are extremely grateful to the Spurs Legends team and the RAF Northolt players for giving up their time today to play this highly enjoyable game in front of this very appreciative crowd.

“The amount of money raised will go to the very deserving past and present members of the Armed Forces and their dependants who have done, and are continuing to do, so much for our country.”

SSAFA Forces Help helps and supports those who serve or used to serve in the armed forces as well as caring for their families. Last year it provided help for more than 50,000 people.

Regeneration project to bring £8m investment to Heartlands

PLANS to rejuvenate derelict land into new community hub have been given the go-ahead.

Haringey Council’s planning committee has approved the Haringey Heartlands scheme.

The plans, drawn up by National Grid Property Holdings and the London Development Agency, include about 1,000 new homes, restaurants, cafés and bars, a public square, retail units, business units and offices, community space, roof top allotments, and parking for cars and bicycles.

Land between Hornsey Park Road,

Mayes Road, Clarendon Road, Coburg Road and the railway lines in Wood Green will be transformed.

The scheme also delivers a section 106 legal agreement – which will see about £8million pumped into local transport, schools, healthcare, community facilities and training.

Council leader Claire Kober said: “This land has laid derelict for a number of years and we are looking forward to finally seeing it regenerated through a landmark scheme which will bring much needed jobs and homes to the heart of the borough.”

Grassroots football coaches sow the seeds of community spirit

Grassroots football is a vital part of life across London, where football has always played a huge role in bringing the community together. But whether it's young kids taking their first steps in the game, boys and girls playing after school, on the weekend and during holidays, or adult Sunday league teams – one thing's for sure, football in our community wouldn't happen without the coaches.

And Ben Murray, a volunteer football coach at Ashford Town FC in Middlesex, is just one of the thousands of grassroots football volunteers from up and down the country who are passionate and committed to the game.

Ben is one of over 20,000 qualified football coaches created through the partnership between The FA and McDonald's to help improve standards in the grassroots game and beyond, and was recently nominated for a national Coach of the Year Award at the FA Community Awards, achieving Highly Commended status.

Despite being only in his early twenties, Ben has been coaching teams at Ashford Town for the last eight years and epitomises the hard work that goes into the grassroots game from football coaches up and down the country.

He is a great example of what is required of a grassroots coach showing unlimited dedication, bags of enthusiasm and a great deal of encouragement. Just this year, he took the Under 18 side to the County Cup Final and has been instrumental in the development of the Under 16 age group.

The club is his priority and he spends every spare minute coaching, organising tournaments, improving his own qualifications and helping with the running of the club.

Ben would encourage others to get involved too: “Good quality coaches are the lifeblood of the grassroots game and I'd encourage anyone to find out more – it's so rewarding and there is a real need for more people to get involved.

Ben believes that anyone can be a good football coach. “You just need patience, a good sense of humour and a willingness to learn. We all have transferable skills that could lend themselves to football – it's just a case of putting them into practice.”

There isn't a single footballer – whether it's Wayne Rooney or the striker in the local pub team – who hasn't benefitted from volunteer football coaches who dedicate their spare time to grassroots football, week in, week out. Without coaches at grassroots level, the game as we know it simply wouldn't exist.

Football coaching isn't just about creating the stars of tomorrow, the next David Beckham or Gareth Bale, but providing important sporting opportunities in local communities. Kids, families, players young and old – they all rely on local football coaches.

As The FA's Community Partner, McDonald's is committed to identifying coaching talent and helping young footballers shine at grassroots level.

That's why McDonald's and The FA are giving away 500 coaching bursaries, each worth £100 to anyone interested in coaching. For existing coaches who want to reach the next level, to those totally new to coaching and want that first badge, apply online now at www.TheFA.com/YourGame

What's more, 12 lucky individuals will be selected at random to participate in the first McDonald's Coaching Masterclass held at Wembley Stadium in November. At the Masterclass, a number of elite coaches including The FA's Head of Elite Development Gareth Southgate, McDonald's Director of Football Sir Geoff Hurst, Ex Man Utd Youth Coach and McDonald's Head Coach Eric Harrison, and many others, will host classes on the pitch, teaching new drills and techniques and answering questions.

Over the last few years many questions have been asked of the English game and the development of our young footballers. Rather than sit back, The FA and its Community Partner, McDonald's are working together to help the development of both players and coaches, developing the right practices and raising standards at grassroots.

McDonald's is giving you the chance to improve the game at grassroots level. If you're interested in becoming a grassroots coach, or you're a dedicated coach ready to take it to the next level, we're giving you the chance to further your coaching career with hundreds of coaching vouchers worth £100 each to give away.

Plus there's the chance to win a coaching Masterclass experience at Wembley for you and your team to be coached by Legends of the game.

Simply visit TheFA.com/YourGame for your chance to win.

Slave's passionate fight to give women a new voice

RAZIYE AKKOC previews A Slave Story

TELLING the heartbreaking and hopeful story of black women and their history, A Slave Story hopes to move and inspire its audience.

Part of the Millfield Arts Centre's new season, the play focuses on the impact of slavery on nine generations of women from West Africa to Britain.

But writer and director Yaw Asiyama, 45, is not telling a story simply about slavery's impact on the slave. The Ghanaian-born playwright explores the effect on the family and women especially.

"Because I believe history has not focused on women, I wanted women's voice to be heard," he said. "History focuses on a man's mediocre actions but a woman must do something great, like win a war, to have her story told."

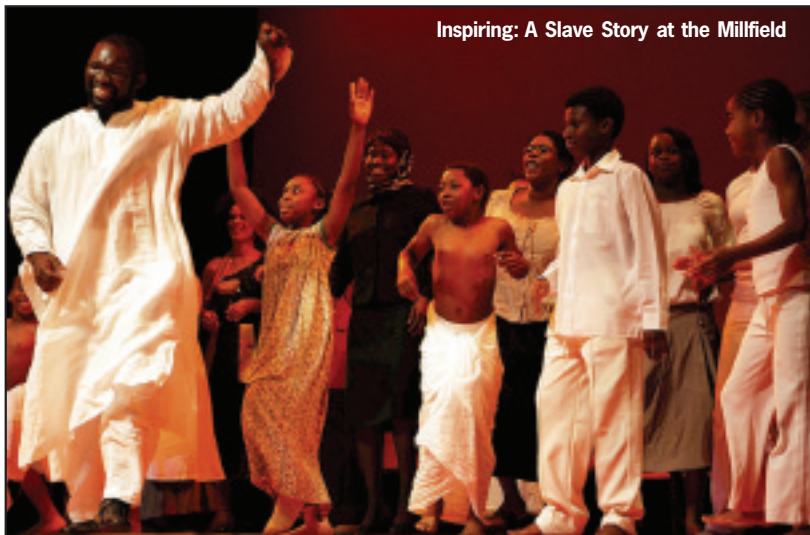

"I just thought to myself, 'Why isn't there a great story about women?' A Slave Story is a story of slavery from a woman's viewpoint."

Set over a long period, Yaw's play has an all-female cast of 11 and a gospel choir, promising a musically rich production.

Yaw is deeply passionate about the play he wrote within two weeks nearly six years ago.

"Once I wanted to write it, it all happened really quickly," he said.

Since it opened in 2005 it has played to thousands of people including a packed-out Milton Keynes Theatre of more than 1,200 back in 2007 – the bicentennial year of the abolishment of slavery.

Inspiring: A Slave Story at the Millfield

The play's popularity grew after civil rights campaigner Reverend Jesse Jackson saw the play at Milton Keynes and was enthralled. "He called me and I didn't believe it was him. I thought it was a friend playing a prank!"

Aimed at those of any age, Yaw wanted it to be accessible, "It's a play that my children can also watch", the father of four added.

● A Slave Story will be shown as part of Black History Month and runs from October 12 to October 14. For ticket details and times, call the Millfield box office on 020 8807 6680.

Great value food served in a traditional pub setting

Restaurant News

The Dovecote Pub, Beaufort Park, Hendon 020 8203 9032

"TOO often with new pubs you lose the local feel to them," said restaurant manager Jason Timms. "What I aim for is to bring back the local and get to know the residents. We already have a lot of regulars."

The latest addition to the Hendon pub scene is more food-focused, more child-friendly and has more of a countryside feel than many townie pubs – as reflected in its title (named after a ladybird).

Spacious and well laid-out, the restaurant is comfortable with a relaxed atmosphere. There are large tables for groups and more intimate corners for couples. It has free wi-fi and many comfortable seats.

But best of all is the food, which is fantastic value for money. There's a large selection of starters, steaks, burgers, fish and hearty pub favourites, all for under £10. Particular recommendations are the steaks, the pork and cider hotpot (£8.25) and the British beef and ale pie (£7.95), which – as this journalist can testify – are all mouth-watering and delicious.

"The food is good here," Jason told me. "All the chefs are put through an intensive training course that we provide. They are taught how to cook all the dishes and to keep up high standards. We have a new winter menu coming out soon too."

There is a "two meals for ten pounds" offer as well as a "lighter options" selection. The lighter dishes contain no more than 500 calories and the menu has been marked clearly where a dish contains two of your five vegetable portions for the day.

But it's not just the gourmands who are well catered for. Those interested in real ales can enjoy a fantastic selection, including Marstons Pedigree, Sneeklifter and a selection of guest ales, while the kids can eat for free and the restaurant has a separate section for families.

The Dovecote also boasts its own

Big selection: The Dovecote Pub offers a wide variety of favourites

"tortilla factory", where children can play with their food in a constructive way by making their own tortillas.

WALKER'S JOY AT DERBY CLINCHER

By Dominique Stafford

KYLE WALKER admitted that he could not have picked the better time to score his first goal for Tottenham Hotspur after he sealed victory for Spurs over bitter rivals Arsenal in Sunday's north London derby at White Hart Lane.

With the match tied at 1-1 in the 73rd minute, the 21-year-old right-back settled the match when he collected the ball some 35 yards out and unleashed a ferocious shot which Arsenal keeper Wojciech Szczesny was unable to prevent from going into the net.

"It doesn't get much better than that," he said. "I just picked the ball up and hit it."

"It was a great feeling, my first north London derby. Hopefully there will be many more derbies and goals to come."

"I just thought 'why not have a go?'. If you don't buy a lottery ticket, you don't win the lottery. It was great to see it fly in."

"Arsenal are a good team and we found it difficult at times, but we dug deep and got the result that we wanted."

Although the visitors dominated possession for long spells, Spurs always carried more of an attacking threat and Rafael van der Vaart gave them the lead shortly before half-time.

Aaron Ramsey levelled the scores on 52 minutes, but Tottenham continued to create the better chances and Walker's strike sealed their fourth successive Premier League win.

"We were the better team in the second half and deserved the win," said manager Harry Redknapp. "We had a couple of great chances to finish them off and just couldn't find that third goal."

"In the first half they had more possession than us and it was difficult. Overall it was a fantastic performance and we're playing well."

The win completed a good few days for Redknapp, who was named Barclays manager of the month for September on Friday as a result of Spurs' fine recent form.

"It's always nice to win an award," he added. "We have had a good month and played some good football, so I could not be more pleased."

Unlikely hero: Kyle Walker scored Spurs' winner against Arsenal

Borough leave it late to snatch a draw at Hadley

HARINGEY BOROUGH needed a stoppage-time penalty to rescue a 3-3 draw from a game they had more than enough chances to win at Hadley in the Spartan Premier Division on Saturday.

It was a slow start that was to ultimately prove costly for the visitors as goals from Darren Turner and Anthony Burns put Hadley 2-0 up inside the first 30 minutes.

But Borough soon began to take control, and were twice denied by the woodwork before Richard Worrell pulled one back from the spot on 38 minutes after he had been bundled over in the box.

Borough began the second half in determined fashion, but they had to wait until the 68th minute to get back on level terms when substitute Roland Namquita netted with a crisp low finish at the end of a fine run.

The visitors looked by far the more likely winners at this stage, but Hadley regained the lead from their first real attack of the half with ten minutes remaining – Sean Ridgeway evading Andreas Loizou's desperate challenge and firing a shot just out of the reach of keeper Ryohei Tamai.

To their credit, Borough refused to give up and were rewarded for their efforts late on when a Hadley defender was penalised for handling in the box and Worrell again made no mistake from the spot to ensure that the points were shared.

Haringey Borough entertain London Tigers on Saturday (3pm).
